Index to Volume 28 (1991)

	Issue	Pages
Special Issues
Criminal Law Reform: Anglo-Soviet Perspectives	1	1–197
The Emigre Experience	2	201–350
Contributions
Allen, R. E., The new East-West economics	4	473–494
Ashworth, A., Legislature, judiciary, and sentencing reforms in England and Wales	1	81–93
Bartholomew, M., Defense vs. security in the NATO alliance	4	437–447
Borodin, S. V., Nonimputability under Soviet criminal law	1	45–53
Bukoswki, C., Yugoslavia and the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe	3	371–389
Butler, W. E., On the draft USSR fundamental principles of criminal legislation	1	159–196
Cichock, M. A., Encouraging reform in Eastern Europe: Soviet attitudes in focus	4	449–472
Davis, D. E., The emigre transmission of 'Russianness': Kandinsky, Stravinsky, Nabokov	2	273–300
Deluca, A. R., Global futures, interdependence, and the emerging new world order	3	419–427
Dennis, I., Culpability and intoxication in English law	1	55–66
Dienes, L., Studies on the Russian emigration and its contribution to modern Western culture	2	201–214
Dubovik, O. L., Guilt in Soviet criminal law	1	13–22
Friedgut, T. H., Determinants of Soviet emigration policies	2	319–333
Göbler, F., Russian Berlin: A cultural enclave in the West	2	307–318
Groth, A. J., and Dannehl, C. R., Communist and non-communist Europe: Some differences in world economic participation, 1970-1985/86	4	495–512
Jamgotch Jr., N., Assessing the revolution in superpower arms control and security communications	3	351–369
Harwin, J., Professional dilemmas: Criminal and family law in child protection	1	67–79
Kasack, W., Three waves of emigration to Germany: Russian writers and their influence on German culture	2	301–306
Kelina, S. G., On drafting new criminal legislation in the USSR	1	3–12
Larin, A. M., Constitutional supervision in the USSR	1	149–158

	Issue	Pages
Leigh, L. H., Reason, emotion and criminal responsibility	1	23–43
McKinzie, R. and Trani, E. P., The influence of Russian emigres on American policy towards Russia and the USSR, 1900–1933, with observations on analogous developments in Great Britain	2	215–251
Magocsi, P. R., Made or re-made in America? Nationality and identity formation among Carpatho-Rusyn immigrants and their descendants	2	335–348
Naumov, A. V., Problems of criminalization and decriminalization	1	95–106
Reiner, R., Policing and criminal justice in Great Britain	1	107–117
Savitskii, V. M., Aspects of judicial reform in the USSR	1	119–131
Seroka, J., From authoritarian rule to democratic pluralism: The transformation of the League of Communists of Yugoslavia	3	391–401
Sinkovics, A., Feudal State socialism and the theory of scientific socialism	3	403–417
Stein, A., Criminal defences and the burden of proof	1	133–147
Swanson, J. M., Emigre contributions to Western science	2	253–272
White, S., The Soviet elections of 1989: From acclamation to limited choice	4	513–539
Book Reviews
Buzan, B. (ed.): The European Security Order Recast – Scenarios for the Post-Cold War Era, 1990 (Reviewed by David Lane)	3	433–434
Cimbala, S.J.: Uncertainty and Control, 1990 (Reviewed by Laura J. Richards)	4	541–542
Deger, S., and Sen, S. (eds.): Military Expenditure – The Political Economy of International Security, 1990 (Reviewed by Laura J. Richards)	3	433–434
Zaslavskaya, T.: The Second Socialist Revolution – An Alternative Strategy, 1990 (Reviewed by David Lane)	3	429–431